Customer Reviews

Casen Reed was the newest quarterback to the Tigers football team and Tory was the journalist from TKT assigned to follow him. Tory was going to have a hard time getting much to work with if the team's owner could help it. A story written about Carter Davenport some time ago, still has him banning her efforts to get a story on Casen Reed. That, and the fact that the only question she was able to sneak in at him, amid a sea of journalists, brought in question his decision to get Casen Reed, and asking if this is not something his father would have done. Bringing his father into this had him seeing red. He hated what his father was doing with this and a number of other businesses he owned. Once the owner told Casen in no uncertain terms is he to speak with Tory, he was determined to make amends for initially being rude to her the previous time they spoke. He invited her to come out to the bar that he and his teammates were going to be at that evening. His only stipulation was, she had to wear a sexy little dress and he would answer any questions she wanted to ask and even get his teammates to answer a few too. Casen was curious as to why Davenport was so against speaking to her and she was happy to tell him as well as letting him know it is going to look like nothing compared to what she's working on now. That was the extent of their conversation concerning Davenport, as Casen's curiosity is more on having fun with Tory at the moment. This is the night their mutual attraction is taken to another level. Tory makes Casen promise to keep them a secret as what she's working on could be dangerous to him if anyone knows they are together.

I received Play Dirty (A Bad Boy Sports Romance) by Nikki Wild as an ARC in exchange for an honest review. This is the second sports book of Nikki's that I have read, and enjoyed very much. Casen Reed, the hometown football star drafted from college into the pros to a new expansion team. And Tory Slayton the would be top journalist who covered the sports news, but always dug for something more, something spectacular. Carter Davenport, the man who thought his money and power bought him anything and everything he wanted including murder. He hated Tory for some of the speculative stories she had already written, and found out she was digging too deep into matters that didn't concern her at all. Davenport was willing to have her silenced any way he could. When an outside anonymous source contacted Tory with some vague references to Carter Davenport's father's death, Tory knew she really had been onto something good, but her boss Mark Houck didn't see it at all and refused to let her dig into it any further. Davenport then approached Casen and told him to stay away from Tory or he wouldn't be happy with the outcome. But Casen was in too deep with Tory to listen to this pompous guy in front of him. When Tory was followed and nearly run off the road, and her mother's house was trashed, Tory knew she struck a nerve, and her anonymous source was right about being careful and vigilant. When she told Casen, he swore this was going to stop. Tory was banned from the stadium and the team, and Casen was put on suspension for crossing Davenport. Tory knew she had to give this story to her boss to get it out there before someone really hurt. Little did she know that her boss was double crossing her for his own gains with Davenport.
